The Compromise Measures and the Democracy. The democracy are, in all quarters, taking strong decided and manly ground in favor of the compromise measures, while the whigs are either avoiding any expression of opinion, or are open-mouthed in favor of a modification or a repeal of one of them, at least. The difference between the two parties was strikingly manifested in the Pennsylvania citly in Wells' fire proof block, which no one doubted conventions—the whig convention voting down by a was fire proof against all external fire, though finlarge majority a resolution pledging a fulfilment of ished inside with wood. Lords. On the night of the 30th June, the Marquis of Londonderry brought the case of Abd-el-Kader before the House of Lords, and wished to know whether the government were in possession of any information respecting his transmission to the Sultan's dominions, and whether instructions had been given to the British diplomatic agents at Paris and Constantinople to facilitate the release of that eminent warrior. The Marquis of Lansdowne, speaking for the govel-Kader's release, he could not help declaring that, as a government, England had no sort of right to interfere in the matter.

Prince Napoleon to himself, as follows:

"What you have told me of the Emir Abd-el-Kader has filled me with a very lively interest; and I recognize in your anxiety for him the same generous heart which interceded some years ago in favor of the prisoner of Ham. I will confess to you that from the first day of my election the captivity of Abd-el-Kader has never ceased to occupy my attention, and to press upon my heart with intolerable weight. Thus I have often busied myself in attempting to discover the means which would enable me to set him at liberty without the risk of compromising the repose of Algeria and the safety of our soldiers and our colonies. Even at the present mo-ment my new ambassador, (mon nouvel embassadeur,) who is on the point of starting for Constantinople, is instructed by me to studdy this question; and believe me, my dear Marquis, that nobody will be more happy than myself when I shall have the power of restoring Abd-el-Kader to liberty. "LOUIS NAPOLEON."

The Marquis thought that an expression of opinion by the British government in favor of the liberation of the Emir would greatly strengthen the French President's hands in carrying his purpose.

Lord Brougham, after the response of the Marquis of Landsdowne was given, expressed a strong feeling ed of sympathy for the captive warrior; in the conclusion of his remarks saying that he did not blame Louis Phillippe nor Louis Napoleon for the conduct they had pursued towards this eminent individual, but he did blame the public opinion of France, which he said was anything but sound and creditable to that nation.-N. A Short Sermon. " Man's a vapor, Cuts a caper, And down he goes.'

Genius has the power of condensing mighty truths into a small compass, as is illustrated by the quotation at the head of this article.

1. Man's a vapor. This shows that a man is forever puffed by vanity, that his mighty deeds and loftiest sayings are but wind; that when he talks, 'tis gas, when he waxes eloquent, 'tis fog; and when he becomes angry, 'tis all smoke. Full of woes. This is a graphic description of the condition of man. Witness: corns, toothache, gout, hyps, matrimony and other innumerable evils which flesh is

3. Cuts a caper. This is another startling truth. Every man cuts known by the caper he cuts, and we are taught that the buyer, but no quotable decline. Sales of the three days his final happiness depends upon whether the caper 16,000 bales, 3,000 of which were taken on speculation and his final happiness depends upon whether the caper he cuts be good or evil. But be that as it may, his end is solemnly and impressively shadowed forth in the concluding line,

4. And down he goes. Sr. Louis .- The total value of the real and personal estate in the city of St. Louis, as fixed by the Assessors, for the year 1851, is $34,433,529 21.

The Child of Earth. Fainter her slow step falls from day to day, Death's hand is heavy on her dark'ning brow ; Yet doth she fondly cling to earth—and say, "I am content to die—but oh! not now,— Not while the clossoms of the joyous spring Make the warm air such luxury to breathe, Not while the birds such lays of gladness sing,—
Not while the bright flowers around my footsteps wreath Spare me, great (rod! lift up my drooping brow,
I am content to die—but oh! not now!"

The Spring has ripen'd into summer time, The season's viewless bound'ry is past; The glorious sun hath reached his burning prime,— Oh, must this glimpse of beauty be the last? "Let me not perish, while o'er land and sea, With silent steps, the lord of light moves on; Nor while the murmur of the mountain bee Greets my dull ear with music in its tone! Pale sickness dims my eye, and clouds my brow, I am content to die—but oh! not now!"

Summer is gone: and Autumn's soberer hues Tint the ripe fruits, and gild the waving corn; The huntsman swift the flying game pursues, Shouts the halloo! and winds his eager horn: "Spare me awhile, to wander forth and gaze On the broad meadows and the quiet stream; To watch in silence while the evening rays Start through the fading trees with ruddy gleam. Cooler the breezes play around my brow, I am content to die—but oh! not new!"

The bleak wind whistles: snow showers, far and near, Drift without echo to the whitening ground; Autumn hath passed away, and cold and drear Winter stalks on, with frozen mantle bound. Yet still that prayer escapes: "Oh, laughingly My little brothers round the warm heart crowd. Our home fire blazes broad and bright and high, And the roof rings with voices light and loud. Spare me awhile! raise up my drooping brow! I'm content to die—but oh! not now!"

The Spring has come again-the joyful spring! Again the banks with clustering flowers are spread; The wild bird dips upon its wanton wing,— The Child of Earth is numbered with the dead! Thee, never more the sunshine shall awake. Beaming all-redly through the lattice pane; The steps of friends thy slumbers may not break, Nor fond familiar voice arouse again! Death's silent shadows veil thy darkened brow, Why didst thou linger? Thou are happier now!"

nambucator : "Gen Edney, United States consul to (and from) Pernambuco, is expected here soon. He is destined to renown, for his "Tracks of a Traveller" are enough to immortalize any one. I am trying to procure a full series of these luminous epistles from which to collect extracts under the title of "The Beauties of Edney." We have "The Beauties of Irving," why not those of Edney ? For instance, such as his description of Niagara Falls, which he likens to the vaulted arch of Heaven turned bottom upwards like a bowl, and a stream as large as the stream of life pouring into it! And then again his Shakespeare ever wrote. He has also seen Varona. renowned as the place where Lord Byron has laid the scene of Romeo and Juliet. These are only a few of the "Beauties." but enough to show the character of them all. The General was born to-

Virginia .... REVIEW OF THE WILMINGTON MARKET,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 24, 1851

The water courses continue low, extremely so, and no produce arriving from above tide way. The Railroad Bridge at Neuse River has been repaired in the unprecedented short time of 27 days from its being burnt, and freighting, as formerly, is now going on over the whole length of the road -I know a lady that talks so incessantly, that she Already some lots of Bacon, &c., have reached town. Below will be found such remarks as circumstances will admit: BACON.-There has been but little received for the last month, and the stock has been nearly all worked off. Quotations as yet seem to be fully maintained. A lot, however, of 500 pieces or more, were received per Railroad to-day, and the belief is, that there is considerable quantity ready to be brought in, and the impression seems to prevail that prices will be likely to recede as the supply may be increased. The stock of Western Bacon is growing lighter, but prices remain firm. We refer to our table for as fair a statement of prices as we are enabled to obtain.

BEEF CATTLE-The stock of Beef Cattle is by no means extra, and prices are about the same as reported last week. CORN-There has been 300 bushels received from up the river, and it is selling in lots from boat at 67 cents per bushel. Nearly all disposed of. Stock in store fully fair. Meal. NEW YORK, July 22.-Flour, $4 06 a $4 14. Corn meal | There has been no receipts since last report, and no change in store rates.

COFFEE-The stock in store is heavy, and prices inclined to give way a fraction for Rio, though no actual decline has yet taken place.

FLOUR--We can hear of no Fayetteville Flour on the market, and we erase quotations. Quotations for other brands without change.

LARD-This article is very scarce, and we continue last week's figures. Arrivals are anticipated. LIME-None received, and stock remarkably light in store We give no figures.

LUMBER-There has been nothing doing in River Lumber About 200,000 feet on the market, and no offers for it. LIQUORS-Firm. See table. Molasses-There is no change in prices in lots-single hhds. from 20 to 21 cents per gallon, according to

NAVAL STORES-At the close of our enquiries last week, the market for Turpentine was quick at the figures we gave on Thursday. The quotations of that day continued up to Tucsday evening last. On Wednesday, sellers submitted to a decline of 5 cents per bbl. on yellow dip, and the sales since last week. Pork rather dull-the market well supplied. Ba- that time have reached about 1335 bbls., at $2 25 for vellow. and $2 75 for virgin dip. The transactions of the week foot up about 2,200 bbls., at $2 30 a $2 25 for yellow; and $2 75 for virgin. Closing to-day at lowest figures. The market appears to be settled and steady. About 1,000 bbls. No. 3 Rosin has been taken at 971 cents and $1 per bbl. We hear of a sale of No. 1 at $2 per bbl., to be selected. Spirits Turpentine .- The sales of this article, since last Thursday, have reached about 800 bbls., all of which changed hands at 264 cents per gallon, being a decline of 24c. per Rice is more inquired for at rather better prices.

The Manchester trade is steady, but late Indian advices gallon on last week's highest quotations, and prices rather drooping. Tar .- Receipts very light, and sales at $1 45 per bbl. in the ordinary way. 150 bbls. in shipping order, at $1 75.

> SALT-100 sacks sold at 80 cents per sack. Our highest quotations are for retail prices. Shingles-But few arriving, and sell at quotations.

STAVES-We bear of no arrivals. Sugars-Firm, with light sales from store at quotations. TIMBER-One raft ordinary mill timber sold at $7, and

FREIGHTS-No material change in the rates of freights. EXCHANGE-Firm. See table. MIGARS, Cigars .- Just received, a fine lot of extra Ci
